

OKC, or "How The Tyrants Avoided A Revolution"

Norm Olson

April 19--OKC and the Militia--Reflections

By the Autumn of 1994, the corrupt federal government faced a popular movement that potentially could unleash revolution. It had to stop the growing threat of the militia. It did that by murdering twice as many American at OKC than it had at Mt. Carmel.

The militia arose because of the government's abuse of power. The militia determined to let the government know that it's tyranny would have grave consequences. It grew rapidly in strength. At some point the federals considered it to be a grave threat against its own corrupted regime in Washington. Somehow, an event must be created that save the necks of the tyrants while sending shock waves of horror throughout America.

Then in April, just five years ago, OKC happened. The federal's case against McVeigh was carefully planned to result in a swift conviction. As planned, McVeigh's motive was clearly set forth BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT: Retaliation for Mt. Carmel. The media sold it and America bought it.

When the Murrah Building went down, the loudest and clearest statement possible was made to the tyrants (by the tyrants themselves, as planned) that tyranny DOES have consequences.

This is exactly what the bombing was intended to do. But it was the federal government itself that set about to make the statement. Remember, it was planned to save the tyrant's own skin.

The federals wanted America to buy into a preception: That with a single act, the government realized that it could not overstep its bounds without paying the price. The federals have played an extraordinary mind game on the American people AND the patriot/militia community. They created an event and have controlled the aftermath. By slaughtering 168 men, women, and children, the tyrant has saved his own skin.

OKC didn't FORCE the militia underground, it simply concluded the original intent of the militia to stop the tyrant. The militia didn't go underground, it went back home. It has bought the notion: "Aha! The tyrant was surely taught the lesson that it's abuse of power has severe consequences." This is exactly what the federals intended that we think!

OKC was a tragedy to be sure, but its affect was far greater on the government than on the militia, just as the government had intended that it should.

While we, the militia, warned that federal abuse would have grave consequence, the federal government ITSELF showed us. Because of the rise of the militia, the tyrant withdrew, changing its methodology of murdering women and children. But now it faced a greater threat: That of tremendous civil unrest, leading possibly to a great uprising and possible revolution. Somehow, the federals knew, they must stop the growth of the militia, check the civil unrest, and gain power and control once more. A direct attack against the militia would only strengthen it. Soldiers fighting soldiers was what they trained for. Something else must be done? How would it do that? By targeting its own government employees and their children. Would it work? Yes, in retrospect, it has worked better than the federals had planned.

If you'll remember, the original objective of the militia movement was to stop the tyrant and its abuse of power. The militia was growing with exceeding speed and support. The federals devised a plan to put the brakes on the militia: The event in OKC, regardless of how heinous or unexpected, did just that. JUST AS THE FEDERALS HAD PLANNED.

The federal government watched the rise of the militia movement with great anxiety. Could it be that the threat of the militia directly against the Washington Regime was so great that a plan was devised BY WASHINGTON to sacrifice the lives of nearly 200 Americans in Oklahoma to do exactly what the OKC bombing has done?

🚩 A. Consider that IF civil unrest continued unchecked, with millions of Americans joining the militias, buying guns, and waiting for some charismatic leader to begin a rebellion, that a "controlled event" would "defuse" the building tension.

🚩 B. Consider that the federals had a far better reason for destroying the Murrah Building than anyone could imagine!

By destroying the Murrah Building and laying the blame at the feet of disaffected and alienated zealots, the federals WOULD THEMSELVES create the atoning sacrifice of 168 Americans to save their own skins later on. There can be little doubt that the corrupted federal government was frightened of a righteous rebellion. How many wicked judges, lawyers, and corrupted politicians would be dragged to the gallows if the militia movement were not stopped? The federals had to find a way to stop the militia movement.

🚩 C. Consider where the militia movement would be today if OKC hadn't happened!

🚩 D. Consider also the speed with which the evidence was destroyed and total avoidance of any possible collaboration in the bombing. McVeigh was used in some way as a government patsy. The bombs (plural), the truck, the strange events, the "John Does," EVERYTHING point to a deliberate act by the federal government to defuse the militia movement. It seems more than evident that the federals had good reason NOT to broaden the investigation, thus exposing their own plot.

In review, their effort to stop the militia movement seems to have had that effect.

In short, the wickedness and corruption of the federal government, faced with the prospect of a rising and uncontrollable armed civilian militia against which it could not resist, picked the place (in the heart land of America) and the time (April 19), to murder 168 Americans in order to save itself from the growing possibility of revolution.

Then it forced and proved its case against McVeigh in order to satisfy America's hunger for "justice."

The sad irony of all this is that the militia has returned to its dwelling place within the body of the people without fully realizing that the events on April 19: Lexington, Mt. Carmel, OKC, WERE ALL PLANNED AND ORCHESTRATED BY TYRANTS IN GOVERNMENT!

Today, more than ever before, the militia needs to be ready and watchful. Against the continued calls to disband and retreat, the call of vigilance goes out. The forces of evil, corruption, and tyranny are still resident and unchecked. The tyrant has avoided revolution this time by it's murderous act on April 19, 1995. Thinking that the patriots/militia are somehow responsible, we have retreated or just gone away. But we are not in any way responsible! The tyrant just wants us to think that way.

Norm Olson

Commander, Northern Michigan Regional Militia